Good afternoon Anna

I refer to your email below in which you seek clarification regarding the ability of myotherapists to continue to practice under the current restrictions that are in place under the Public Health Act 1997 in order to manage the threat to public health posed by COVID-19.

As you are aware, health service facilities are not prevented from operating in Tasmania. As myotherapists each provide health care services, they may continue to provide such services, to the extent that they constitute health care services and can be delivered from a medical or health services facility.

Premises such as gymnasiums, health clubs, fitness centres, wellness centres and other similar premises or venues are not permitted to open or operate. The only exception to this requirement is where part of the premises or venue is used to provide physical rehabilitation services that are provided by, or under the direction of, a registered health practitioner within the meaning of the Health Practitioner Regulation National Law (Tasmania) or a person who holds accreditation as an accredited exercise physiologist with Exercise and Sports Science Australia. I have been advised that it is not proposed to broaden this exception any further at this time.

The restrictions that apply change regularly and you may wish to regularly visit the Tasmanian Government's dedicated Coronavirus website www.coronavirus.tas.gov.au.

Kind regards,

Office of the State Health Commander - Legal
